Human Trafficking of Children/Youth: Information and Strategies All Practitioners Should Know with Holly Priebe Sotelo, DPPD, MSW

Wednesday, July 13, 2022
5:30 - 7 pm PT

Human trafficking of children is a form of modern-day slavery, child abuse, and an egregious violation of human rights! This workshop will provide practical information and resources that are evidence-based, trauma-informed, and culturally responsive to empower individuals and strengthen policies in all sectors.

Holly Priebe Sotelo, DPPD, MSW is a clinical associate professor of field education at the USC Suzanne Dworak-Peck School of Social Work. Priebe Sotelo has a Master of Social Work, a Bachelor of Science in Rehabilitation Services, and a doctoral degree from the USC Sol Price School of Public Policy. Priebe Sotelo has three decades of practical social work experience, including direct practice and the coordination of policy and curriculum development on topics including school crisis response; threat assessment; school bullying and harassment; child abuse; human trafficking; diversity and anti-bias; intergroup relations and mediation; teen dating violence; educator sexual misconduct; and restorative justice.
