Led efforts as PI of the first phase of a research project funded by Whole Child International to support the government of El Salvador to further improve the care and protection of vulnerable children and youth and to assess the effectiveness and impact of the national deinstitutionalization and reintegration policy.

- 2016-2019 SOWK 659 Pathways to Immigration: Global Immersion to Mexico - USC Suzanne Dworak-Peck School of Social Work
Developed an elective course that is designed to increase MSW students' understanding of the causes and dynamics of immigration, including policies and legislation that impact delivery of services to immigrant families in the United States. The semester course included a 10-day trip that exposed students to the realities immigrants face through a "migratory journey in reverse" starting in Los Angeles then "migrating" to San Diego, across the international border with Mexico through Tijuana/Ensenada, Mexico City, and Puebla City concluding in Coatzingo/Zacapala (remote migrant sending communities). The pedagogy focused on lived experiences of students and professors while learning from government officials, community leaders, activists, immigrants, professionals and academics who shared their experiences and perspectives on immigration from Mexico and Central America to United States. The students' critical thinking pedagogical skills were required to evaluate the narratives and intercultural learning that they were exposed to understand the deeper implications of the immigrant experience. The course also focused on the development of students' practice skills in the macrosystemic and microsystemic domains to increase their capacity to deliver equitable and culturally informed services.

Studied context of international education to increase insight about the issues that face international and global urban education. Participated in an experiential learning environment through site visits and educational exchanges at K-12 and higher education institutions, including Hong Kong University.
- 2011 Cultural exchange event with Escuela de Trabajo Social Tijuana (UABC)
Coordinated and hosted visitors from the School of Social Work in Tijuana, including current and former students, at USC San Diego Academic Center. Visiting Director conducted an academic presentation about social work in Mexico. Sponsored by SDAC's Latino/a Social Work Caucus and International Social Work Caucus.
- 2011 Cultural exchange trip to Escuela de Trabajo Social Tijuana (UABC)
Organized trip for USC School of Social Work students through their Latina/o and International Social Work Caucus to a private university, incorporated to the Universidad Autónoma de Baja California (state university system), that focuses in social work education. Students from both educational institutions interacted in group discussions to meet, greet and learn from each country's social work practices and realities.

- 2009 Co-coordinator for Binational Social Work Forum, SDSU School of Social Work
 Forum took place in Tijuana, Mexico where over 75 SDSU social work students were transported to join a total audience of almost 200 participants from collaborative efforts with the School of Social Work in Tijuana, Colegio de Trabajadores Sociales de Baja California, A.C., United States Consulate in Tijuana, and the San Diego Chapter of the Latino Social Work Network of California, Inc. This collaboration led to the development of a reciprocal field placement model that eventually led to the placement of SDSU social work students in Mexican agencies near the international border.
